Are "blacks treated like dogs" in Israel?

Having reported on racism in Israel for the last several years, I examine the claim by a rich white Jewish American man that black people are "treated like dogs" in Israel.

A rich old white Jewish American man ignited a furor in the United States when an audio recording revealed that he had berated his black girlfriend, his junior by about half a century, for being seen in public with other black people. In the recording, the man denies that his demand is racist and insists that it is justified, because racism is pervasive in Israel, saying, "You go to Israel, the blacks are just treated like dogs."

Exclusive: The Extended Donald Sterling Tape

Deadspin has acquired an extended, 15-minute version of the conversation between Clippers owner Donald Sterling and his then-girlfriend V. Stiviano. If the original nine-minute tape acquired by TMZ left any questions about Sterling's opinions regarding minorities, the audio here should remove all doubt that he's a doddering racist with views not too far removed from the plantation.

Is anti-black racism pervasive in Israel? Is it true that if you "go to Israel, the blacks are just treated like dogs"? Upon learning of the Donald Sterling controversy, I tweeted a series of statements examining this comparison. I included links to articles and videos, because some of the facts I mention are so shocking that they are hard to believe, if you are hearing about them for the first time.
